A miniature of George Washington ^{owned} by Cary-
Elwes, for sale.

✓

Sept 24/90 60621

Orlando, Florida.

20th Sept'br, 1890.

My dear sir,

I have recently had shown me a miniature of George Washington, which struck me as very well executed. The coloring is done with great skill; the hair not so well, but the entire execution leads me to think, without any special technical knowledge, ~~to believe~~ it not unlikely that it may be a likeness taken directly from the subject, or else, a replica.

This miniature was shown me by Mr. Cary-Elwes, an English gentleman living near Orlando. He informed that his son, who owns the miniature, desires to dispose of it. I obtained from him the following history of the miniature,

On the back is written the words:- W.P.J.Loader, May, 1800.

It was purchased by Harry Stoe, Merchant, of London, about 1800. He died in 1823, and left it to his only daughter, and co-heiress, Hannah, wife of George Scott of Ravensworth, Hammersmith. On George Scott's death it descended to his second daughter, and co-heiress, Georgiana, wife of Rev. Albert Mangles, of Beach Hill, and she, who ^{is} still living, gave it to her great-nephew and godson, Albert Cary-Elwes, 1839.

On a print done from this picture, now in the possession of Miss Mangles, 19 Durham Place, Brighton, are found the following signatures:-

C.J.Stuart, printer. - - - - - W.Nutter.

Published by Rob. Cride, Jan., 15, 1798.

This would probably indicate that the artist was named Nutter. I have no recollection of the name but that goes for nothing, and he may be quite a celebrated painter.

I send you this information, my dear sir, for a double purpose, that if the miniature be a genuine one, ~~that~~ the Gallery may have the opportunity to secure so valuable a relic, and my friend an opportunity to sell it.

I beg you will do me the favour to send me an early reply, and am, my dear sir,

Very truly yours,

Dr. Barber

Curator Corcoran Art Gallery

Dear Sir:

In my interview with you yesterday I failed to mention that the picture of the battle between the Merrimac and U.S. Ships Cumberland and Congress is not an ideal piece but was gotten up for an historic painting. The vessels are all correctly drawn, and are shown in the positions they were in when the fight took place.

I have spent a great deal of time and expense in getting the drawing of the Merrimac correct. Officers who were on both sides of the fight have criticised the picture and declare it correct in every particular. I shall have their testimonials for future reference.

Considering the fact ^{that} the battle took place in a quiet sea, the artist has put a good deal of life & spirit into the picture, and at the same time confined himself to the truth.

I believe the Merrimac has never been correctly painted before. It will be observed that the scene is taken after the Merrimac had rammed the Cumberland and left her sinking,
and is ^{now} in the act of firing upon the Congress.

Very respectfully,
A M Bennett
